Central Asia is a region of great geostrategic and geo-economic importance. More than 74 million people live here. The history and culture of the peoples, the economy and infrastructure of the region's countries are closely interconnected.

As the Leader of Uzbekistan has repeatedly noted, the region's countries face the main goal – to turn Central Asia into a stable, economically developed and prosperous region by joint efforts. President Shavkat Mirziyoyev in 2017 came up with an initiative to organize a Consultative Meeting of Central Asian Leaders to achieve this goal and to fully realize the potential of the region, strengthen relations of mutual trust, good-neighborliness and cooperation.

This initiative, which meets the fundamental interests of the fraternal peoples of the region's countries, received broad support and quickly became a reality. The First Summit of Leaders took place in March 2018 in the capital of Kazakhstan, Nur-Sultan, and the second in November 2019 in the city of Tashkent.

The summit in Avaza was also very rich and informative.

President of the Republic of Uzbekistan Shavkat Mirziyoyev noted that thanks to common political will and joint efforts, today the region is becoming a space of good-neighborliness, mutually beneficial cooperation and sustainable development.
