

The new "Great Charter" of Uzbekistan

The first in the history of Uzbekistan, the Address of the head of state to people's representatives was a strategic guide for further positive changes in the country, was supported by all state and public institutions.

The wide response of the international community to the Address shows to close attention to the processes in Uzbek society, their influence on the formation of a new image of the country.